Safaris, swords and stars: Covid travel with kids

Children are not eligible for vaccines, but high-end travel firms have introduced thematic getaways for families.

Jadavpur, India: A 27-year-old man, checking into the Taj Bengal in the city of Calcutta, may have had just the right travel idea when he addressed the front desk: “How do I say ‘I think the man has a fever’ in Bengali?”

For years, the West Bengal capital did not have a wide array of beach resorts, and the Taj Group of Hotels decided to fill that void by opening the Taj Bengal in the middle of the Ganges River. The hotel’s suites and rooms are set on the riverine side, and the view is spectacular. The hotel has 105 rooms and 59 suites.

Johannesburg, South Africa: A 23-year-old man, checking into the Protea Hotel by Marriott in the city of Johannesburg, may have had just the right travel idea when he addressed the front desk: “How do I say ‘I think the man has a fever’ in Afrikaans?”
